

A Garden

C. Michael Perry

© 2016 by C. Michael Perry

Jesus gave us the Earth
Just to show us our worth:
Far beyond all the beauty known before
When we were God's own children.

Jesus gave us a garden,
Taught us there how to live.
And He knew that we would soon be seeking much more.

Yet, the garden didn't have what we most needed.
And so He sent us to a new and fright'ning place!
And He promised we would find Him there --
There among the Human Race.

There -- He said -- we could reach.
There -- He said -- He would teach.
There -- He said -- we would have what we would need
If we would weed His garden.

Soon He came to this garden --
True and right to His word.
There He taught us, each and every one, how to weed.

Soon the gardeners who were there no longer listened.
Then in a garden Jesus prayed to God on high.
It was in that sacred garden where
He found strength to bear our load.

In a garden of trees --
Boy alone on his knees.
Overhead, God restored the words of truth
To a youth who listened.

Now we won't be alone
As we search for that Garden.
If we trust in His word
Then we will know someday
A garden of our own.