

PRINCESSES

by C. Michael Perry

© 2009 by C. Michael Perry ALL RIGHTS RESERVED

Little Princess, all in white
Tucked in bed on Friday night;
Snuggled with the covers tight;
Won't let me turn out the light.
For once upon a time is our very special place
Where dragons fall to Princes strong;
And minstrel Kings can sing a song;
And evil witches don't last long
'Cause Princesses are always fair of face.

Story time; Two lives can live as one
We read and grow together while we're having lots of fun.
Glory time; The golden hours of youth;
Step by step we test it; too soon we find the truth.

Little Princess grown so wise;
Lost in chasing butterflies;
See the wonder in her eyes;
That's the look that Daddies prize!
For out in nature's own is our very special place
Where sunlight falls in gentle beams,
And moonlight captures all her dreams,
And life is never what it seems
'Cause Princesses are always full of grace.

Learning time; Two lives can live as one.
We build an understanding from our moments in the sun.
Yearning time; the golden hours of youth;
Step by step we test it; too soon we find the truth.

Little Princess by my side
On the couch with eyes too wide...
Thunder rocks and rolls outside;
Storm is here, she wants to hide!
For safe beyond its reach is our very special place
Where trust is king and love can grow,
You're cuddled close and then you know
That life takes on that golden glow,
'Cause princesses don't need a special space.

Thunder time; Two lives can live as one.
We build and trust together without help from any sun.
Wonder time; the golden hours of youth;
Step by step we test it; too soon we find the truth.
And the truth we find is new,
But we never saw the clue:
A Princess always loves the King in you.